Biographical/Administrative History

Elizabeth-Anne Stewart was born in England and was raised in both England and on the Mediterranean island of Malta. She received a B.A. in English from the University of Malta in 1973, a M.A. in English from DePaul University Chicago in 1976, a Certificate in Spiritual Direction from the Claret Center Chicago in 1989, and a Ph.D. in Theology from the University of Malta in 1999. She is a writer and spiritual coach and has also worked in photography and motivational speaking. Stewart was a faculty member at Mundelein College, DePaul University Chicago, Columbia College Chicago, and Saint Xavier University Chicago. She has contributed to different literary magazines, including editing her school Convent of the Sacred Heart's magazine in 1969. Stewart has written religious books, various religious articles, and books for children. She was a part of Writer's Desk, a not-for-profit organization of Chicago-area writers dedicated to the written and spoken word. Members would meet to have community and critique each other's work. She professionally and primarily goes by Dr. Elizabeth-Anne Stewart, though sometimes goes by Elizabeth-Anne Vanek, her married name.

Scope and Content
